

WHAT SUPPORTED EMPLOYMENT MEANS

Supported employment means integrated work...you will be working alongside people who do not have experience of an illness or injury.

Supported employment means ongoing support... you will be getting assistance on and off the job to remain successfully employed.

Supported employment does not mean sheltered employment

Cost.....It's free, and it's for you!

EmploymentWorks!

Supported Employment has proved to be a viable and successful alternative in matching employers' requirements with the capabilities of people who through illness or injury are disadvantaged in pursuing their employment aspirations.

It provides expertise and resources to assist with staff recruitment and placement, as well as ongoing support to ensure employers' needs are consistently met.

Matching the right job for the employee and the employer.

How it works!

Initially we meet:

We listen to what you want and explain what we offer.

Together we set goals and make an employment action plan:

Aim high, the sky is the limit. We can help you develop a detailed plan which identifies your skills and support needs.

The job search begins:

Together we conduct a careful job search for the job that suits you. We will aim to find the right job in the shortest time possible.

You interview for the job:

We can offer invaluable help as you prepare for and attend the interview.

You begin work:

You may try work experience first, either way, we can help you through the start up phase of your new job.

We discuss ongoing support:

Support is important for everyone. Together we work out the level of support you may want and how to provide it. We are available for as long you require.
