With Omicron in the community, here's information to help you prepare

Make a plan

If you or someone you live with gets COVID-19, you'll all need to isolate at home while you recover. This means you won't be able to go out or have whānau visit.

Now is the time to have a kōrero with your whānau about what you'll do if you get COVID-19. Use this household plan to help you.

Make sure you have what you need

If you can, buy some extra food and put together anything else you might need or want if you have to stay at home. Think about:

- Medical supplies – pain relief, lozenges, cough medicine, ice pack, a thermometer, prescription medicine.
- Cleaning supplies – disinfectant, rubbish bags.
- Hygiene supplies – hand sanitiser, toilet paper, tampons or pads, nappies.
- Things you enjoy doing – books, crosswords, games, devices, movies.

For more information on how to prepare, visit Unite against Covid19.

What to do if you feel unwell

Get a free test as soon as possible if you feel unwell or you're a close contact of someone with COVID-19. You'll need to isolate at home until you get your test result. Call 0800 358 5453 for more information. For testing locations, visit www.healthpoint.co.nz.

What to do if you get COVID-19 and need help

If you need medical or other support, please call the COVID-19 Healthline on 0800 358 5453 or your health contact. If you have a medical condition or you're disabled, please let them know.

If at any time you or your whānau feel very unwell, have trouble breathing or are concerned for your safety, call 111.

If you're seriously unwell, you will be taken to hospital. There is no charge for this.

For more information on what to expect, visit Whānau HQ or www.healthnavigator.org.nz

Vaccination is your best protection against Omicron and it's free

If you had your second dose of the Pfizer vaccine more than 3 months ago and you're over 18, it's time to get your booster.

If you have tamariki aged 5 to 11-years-old, you can help keep them safe and protect your whānau by getting them immunised.
